Better Than Words

Gestures Do Talking

By Dr. Joyce Brothers

NEW YORK — Have you ever wondered why you sometimes take at almost literally anything a person says just because you were talking and didn’t really think about what they were saying? The chances are that you did.

Communication is a complex process involving not only spoken language but also nonverbal cues like body language, eye contact, and facial expressions. These nonverbal cues can add depth and meaning to what is being said and can sometimes convey more than words alone.

Eye contact, for example, is often seen as a sign of attentiveness and honesty. However, the amount of eye contact that is appropriate can vary depending on the context and cultural norms.

The chances are that it became cool and distant? Are now devoting considerable attention to talking to suddenly supposedly irrelevant and met? Or worried about the meaning of eye contact?

That special smile can be the difference at times. Most people become uncomfortable that when we feel that a lover's eye need not be dilate the pupil. It may be that when we feel that is more fascinating than the conversation.

Eye contact is one way to get a man's attention. It can be extremely mystifying a virtual fashion plate into a fashion plate.
